Excerpt from Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society of London, for the Year 1855, Vol. 145 But the Society being of late years greatly enlarged, and their communications more numerous, it was thought advisable that a Committee of their members should be appointed, to reconsider the papers read before them, and select out of them such as they should judge most proper for publication in the future Transactions which was accordingly done upon the 26th Of March 1752. And the grounds Of their choice are, and will continue to be, the importance and singularity of the subjects, or the advantageous manner Of treating them without pretending to answer for the certainty of the facts, or propriety of the reasonings, contained in the several papers so published, which must still rest on the credit or judgement Of their respective authors. It is likewise necessary on this occasion to remark, that it is an established rule of the Society, to which they will always adhere, never to give their opinion, as a Body.
